

ABOUT

Are you working with patients who have breast cancer? You do not have to navigate through this journey alone. Welcome to The Chrysalis Initiative where you can access mentorship and resources through our Chrysalis Cancer Coaching Curriculum. We match patients with a breast cancer coach to guide them through all the challenges and complexities that come with a breast cancer diagnosis to help them receive comprehensive breast cancer care and reduce their vulnerability to disparities. Our focus is to support and educate their unique experiences and needs:

When compared with White women, implicit bias, and structural racism result in a 40% higher rate of mortality from breast cancer in Black patients. Black women are often diagnosed at later stages when treatments are limited, costly or prognosis is poorer; and are often diagnosed younger with more aggressive breast cancers.

Breast cancer disparities is a multi-layered and complex issue, a blend of numerous contributing factors including personal risk, inherited or genetic risk, social determinants of health, healthcare delivery barriers, and implicit biases.

The Chrysalis Initiative was established in 2019. We work to help you address any breast cancer disparities and breast health inequities. Our aim is to provide you with education and barrier intervention that will help you reduce the impact of existing inequalities in breast cancer outcomes.

The Chrysalis Initiative Cancer Curriculum ensures that you are knowledgeable on a comprehensive cancer model that should be the optimal care attained by your patients.

THE NUMBERS

There are 276,480 new estimated cases of breast cancer every single year (SEER 13).

About 12.9% of women will be diagnosed with breast cancer during their lifetime (SEER).

3,577,264 women are estimated to be living with breast cancer in the United States (SEER).

Racial disparities are observed in luminal tumors and are most pronounced among Black women of high socioeconomic status. Black women tend to be diagnosed younger and with more aggressive breast cancers than their White counterparts (CDC and NIH).

WHAT YOU CAN DO

Download the BC NAVI App and Dashboard

This app is to provide patients and providers with support regarding their knowledge of the Chrysalis Cancer Curriculum. It also helps them track their continuum of care and provides dashboard reporting to oncology support teams within the center to increase capacity and engagement.

Download the BC Spotlight App

This app is a platform where patients can share their experiences with other Black patients (and other disparity groups) at various centers to encourage transparency and accountability for providers. They also get access to information and resources.

Sign up for Virtual Learning Management Module

Sign up for the learning management system to get access to program materials, including PowerPoint presentations, handouts and interactive participant materials for the Chrysalis Cancer Curriculum as well as online courses and content.

Donate today

Donate today to the Chrysalis Initiative so you can help address disparities and contribute to providing resources for these communities.

FOUNDER

Jamil Rivers

Jamil was diagnosed with metastatic breast cancer de novo at the very young age of 39. With the determination to fight and be available for her children, husband, and family, she researched vigorously to discover how best she can prepare and learn all she needed to know about breast cancer to survive for her family and herself. She is doing well today, thanks to chemotherapy coupled with improving her nutrition with food and supplements. Jamil also incorporates integrative therapies. She believes that the research she did prepared her to seek out the optimal and comprehensive breast cancer care. The Chrysalis Initiative was born from Jamil's experiences offering requested advice and guidance to women on how to thrive with breast cancer, as she was actively receiving chemo herself. She became an advocate to use her voice and experiences to help advance legislative policy, medical research, and customize support to better meet the needs of individuals who have breast cancer, particularly metastatic and Black patients (and other disparity groups). Jamil is Board President of METAvivor Research and Support, Inc. She is a Young Advocate Alum, Board Member of Living Beyond Breast Cancer and Advisory Chair of the Knowledge is Power: Understanding Black Breast Cancer Series. She is a policy science and health equity advocate and metastatic advisory committee member with Susan G. Komen. In addition, she is a member and patient advisor of the Metastatic Breast Cancer Alliance. Jamil also serves as a proposal reviewer for the Breast Cancer Research program with the Department of Defense and a Project LEAD graduate. She launched The Chrysalis Initiative which provides mentoring and source navigation to women like you who are living with breast cancer and engage in outreach to educate Black women and other disparity groups to assess their breast cancer risk. She has participated in numerous community health events. These events facilitated the design and funding of two metastatic clinical trials, and gave her the opportunity to meet with leadership within the PA governor's office and congressional leaders in D.C. Jamil also testified to the FDA and connected many women with resources for screenings, treatment, and support. She has been featured in People Magazine, the Philadelphia Inquirer, the Philadelphia Tribune, national campaigns for Anthropologie, Novartis, Pfizer and Cancer and Careers, and on CBS News and Good Morning America. Jamil and her husband have three children and reside in Drexel Hill, PA.

SPONSORED BY:

Improving the lives of cancer patients everywhere

Jamil Rivers

Founder & CEO

jrivers@thechrysalisinitiative.org

The Chrysalis Initiative

325 Chestnut Street Suite 876 #184 Philadelphia, PA 19106

Social Channels:

General Inquiries: info@thechrysalisinitiative.org

Administrative Questions: admin@thechrysalisinitiative.org

Accounting Questions: accounting@thechrysalisinitiative.org

thechrysalisinitiative.org

PROGRAMS

Chrysalis Cancer Coaching Curriculum Patient Education - For patients with early stage and metastatic breast cancers. It is designed for patients who are facing this diagnosis, so they can have access to knowledge of a comprehensive model for optimum cancer care.

Chrysalis Cancer Curriculum Industry training - For Nurse Navigators and Oncology Teams. It is designed to help train nurse navigators and medical professionals within cancer teams on a comprehensive cancer model that will ensure that they have all the knowledge needed for optimum cancer care, including the unique needs of patients vulnerable to disparities.

Chrysalis Initiative Cancer Curriculum Advocacy Action Training - For advocates. It trains them on how to move forward with efforts in their communities and expands their understanding of social determinants to advance breast cancer health equity.

Chrysalis Initiative Cancer Curriculum Student Training Program - For students. This training will guide students pursuing careers in cancer care and/or research on health equity and the unique needs of patient populations vulnerable to disparities.

PARTNERING ORGANIZATIONS

THE CHRYSALIS
INITIATIVE

PROVIDER

